

Happy New Year

Dear Parents and Children
Greetings!

As we step into a new year, may we pause and look at our children not just with hope, but with deeper understanding. This year invites us to move beyond being providers of comfort and success, and rise as listeners, guides, and anchors in their lives. Our children are silently asking to be seen, heard, and understood. When we walk beside them, help them make wise choices, and hold their hands through mistakes, we give them something far greater than achievements—we give them strength and values.

At school, we begin this year with a renewed vision: to nurture compassionate, confident learners and to build hearts as much as minds. This journey is impossible without our teachers, whose patience, dedication, and quiet sacrifices shape young lives every single day. Let us honour and respect them as partners in parenting.

To our students appearing for the board examinations, remember that these months are important, but they do not define your worth. Stay disciplined, believe in your preparation, and know that your school, teachers, and parents stand beside you with faith and pride.

Together, let us make this new year a shared journey of faith and partnership—where homes and school walk hand in hand, nurturing courage, integrity, and compassion in every child. May our children grow not only in knowledge, but in confidence, kindness, and resilience, knowing they are deeply supported, gently guided, and unconditionally loved.

With best wishes for a very Happy New year!

Warm Regards
Dr Priyanka Mehta
